

Abstract

Method and arrangement for monitoring a program

A method for monitoring a program is specified, in which the program has an instrumentation part added to it. The instrumentation part generates a message, and transmits this message to a monitoring process. The monitoring process initiates a predetermined action.